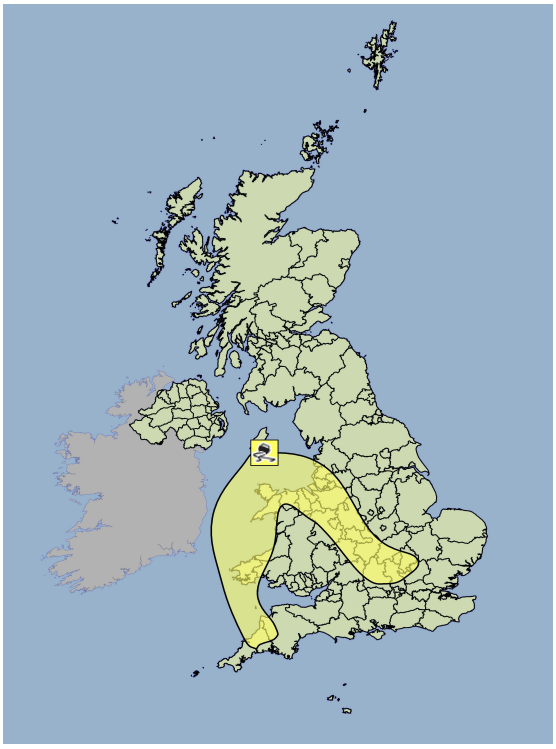
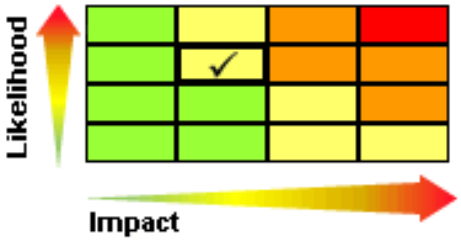
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Clear spells will allow road and pavement temperatures to fall below freezing on Wednesday night. Wintry showers are expected to affect coastal parts of SW England and western Wales. Further, mainly light, showers will move southeast across NW England, the Midlands and parts of central England overnight. Where these showers fall on sub-zero surfaces there is a risk of ice.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 20:00 on Wed, 24th Feb 2016 until 09:00 on Thu, 25th Feb 2016

Temperatures will fall below freezing on Wednesday night, with a risk of scattered wintry showers falling on sub-zero surfaces. This leads to a risk of icy patches on untreated roads and pavements on Thursday morning. In addition, light snow showers may give a temporary dusting of snow away from coasts.

Please be aware of the risk of some locally difficult driving conditions, and some low level travel disruption.
